1960 Census of Population

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORTS

November 21, 1962 PC(S1)-27

INDUSTRY GROUP BY OCCUPATION: 1960

(The table presented here is a preprint of table 209 from Final Report PC(1)-1D which is scheduled to be published in several months and which will contain additional summary information on the detailed characteristics of the population)

About 2 million of the 17½ million Americans who worked in manufacturing at the time of the 1960 Census were in clerical occupations, 1⅓ million were in professional occupations, and 900,000 and 660,000 were in managerial and sales occupations, respectively. Thus, close to 5 million, or almost 30 percent, of the persons working in manufacturing in 1960 were in white-collar occupations. The 1950 Census reports show that, a decade ago, less than 25 percent of the workers in manufacturing were in white-collar occupations.

Among the various types of manufacturing activity, there were substantial differences in occupational structure in 1960. For example, better than 1 out of every 5 persons employed in the manufacture of aircraft and parts was in the professional category. On the other hand, only about 1 in 100 workers in the manufacture of apparel and other fabricated textile products was in a professional occupation. For manufacturing as a whole, professionals constituted about 1 out of every 13 workers.

The 1960 Census counted 854,000 employed male professional engineers in the United States. Approximately 55 percent of these engineers were in manufacturing, 11 percent in construction, and 8 percent in public administration. Among the 15 specific manufacturing groups separately identified in this report, the largest number of male engineers (102,000) was in electrical machinery, equipment, and supplies.

This report presents a cross-classification of industry group by occupation, based on the results of the 1960 Census of Population. The data, which relate to employed men and women in the United States, show (1) the occupational structure of each of 43 industry groups and (2) the industrial attachments of the males in each of 57 occupation categories and the females in each of 30 occupation categories. These figures constitute a summary of the 25-percent sample statistics published in the 1960 Census Series PC(1)-D final reports for the individual States. A more detailed set of national data, cross-classifying 278 occupations by 161 industries, is now being prepared on the basis of a 5-percent sample and will be published early in 1963.

Information on total employed persons, as well as on certain of the occupation categories shown here, is also collected by the Bureau of the Census in the Current Population Survey (CPS) and published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the Monthly Report on the Labor Force. A discussion of differences between the

DEFINITIONS AND EXPLANATIONS

The statistics in this table were obtained from a 25-percent sample, consisting of one household out of every four (and of one person out of every four persons not in households). There may be differences between comparable distributions in this report and in other reports of the 1960 Census of Population because of sampling variability or errors in processing. More complete definitions of the terms used in this report, explanations of collection and processing procedures, and a statement on sampling variability may be found in the introduction to any of the State PC(1)-D reports.

The data on occupation and industry presented here for employed persons refer to the job held during the week for which employment status was reported. For persons employed at two or more jobs, the data refer to the job at which the person worked the greatest number of hours. Information on employment status relates to the calendar week prior to the date on which the respondents filled their 1960 Census household questionnaires or were interviewed by enumerators. This week is not the same for all respondents because not all persons were enumerated during the same week. The majority of the population was enumerated during the first half of April.

Employed persons comprise all civilians 14 years old and over who were either (a) at work--those who did any work for pay or profit, or worked without pay for 15 hours or more on a family farm or in a family business; or (b) were "with a job but not at work"--those who did not work and were not looking for work but had a job or business from which they were temporarily absent because of bad weather, industrial dispute, vacation, illness, or other personal reasons.

The occupational and industrial categories used in this table represent selections and combinations of the items in the detailed classification systems developed for the 1960 Census. The abbreviation "n.e.c." used here means "not elsewhere classified."
