PENNSYLVANIA.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

General character of the state.—Pennsylvania has a gross area of 45,126 square miles, of which 44,832 represent land surface. The inhabitants of the state in 1900 numbered 6,302,115; in 1910, 7,665,111; and in 1920, 8,720,017. In total population Pennsylvania has ranked second among the states at each census since 1830. The number of inhabitants per square mile in 1910 was 171, the corresponding figure for 1920 being 194.5.

In 1920 there were 77 cities in the state having more than 10,000 inhabitants (see Table 6). The combined population of these cities in that year was 4,427,087, which formed 50.8 per cent of the total for Pennsylvania. Of the total value of the state's manufactured products, 63.7 per cent was reported from these 77 cities.

Importance and growth of manufactures (Table 1).—The large increases in salaries and wages, cost of materials, and value of products, from 1914 to 1919, as presented in Table 1, are largely due to the changes in industrial conditions brought about by the World War, and therefore can not properly be used to measure the growth of manufactures during the census period 1914 to 1919. The increases, however, in number of wage earners and horsepower are indicative of a decided growth in the manufacturing activities of the state. The addition of the Federal income tax since 1914 will account for the exceptional increase in "Rent and taxes."

Statistics for the state, by counties (Table 2).—Figures are not available for the comparison of county totals for 1919 with those for prior censuses. Of the 67 counties in the state, Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties, which include the cities of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, respectively, reported 45.7 per cent of the total value of products in the state in 1919 and 40 per cent of the average number of wage earners.

Principal industries, ranked by value of products (Table 3).—The ranking of industries by value of products is not always satisfactory as indicating their importance from a manufacturing standpoint. Their ranking would change materially if based upon the average number of wage earners or value added by manufacture. Iron and steel, blast furnaces, for instance, which ranked third among the industries for which statistics are shown in the table, was thirteenth in average number of wage earners and ninth in value added by manufacture.

Persons engaged in manufacturing industries (Table 4).—The age classification of the average number of wage earners in this and other tables is an estimate obtained by the method described in the "Explanation of terms." The classification by sex for 1919 was reported separately, but for 1914 and 1909 was obtained in the same manner as the distribution by age. Figures for individual industries will be found in Table 52.

Average number of wage earners for selected industries (Table 5).—The industries covered by this table are those which employed more than 3,500 wage earners in 1919, and for which statistics can be shown without the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Average number of wage earners, by sex and age, and value of products for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 6).—During the census period 1914–1919 all cities presented comparatively show increases in value of products, but for 12 of the 66 cities, for which figures are shown separately, there were decreases in the average number of wage earners. Eleven cities could not be shown separately without disclosing the operations of individual establishments, and the totals for them have been combined as "All other cities." (See footnote to table.)

Wage earners, by months (Table 7).—The statistics for wage earners in this table are intended to show the steadiness of employment, or the reverse, in accordance with the industrial conditions existing during the several census years.

Wage earners, by months, for selected industries and for cities (Table 8).—In addition to the number of wage earners employed by months for selected industries, similar data are given for males and females for all industries combined for the state and for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more, and also the number of females for industries in which a large proportion of the wage earners were females. Of the total number of female wage earners in the state in 1919, 71.6 per cent were in the 77 cities, while of the male wage earners 59.3 per cent were reported by the cities. Of the total average number of wage earners shown for the 77 cities, 77.4 per cent were males and 22.6 per cent females. The state as a whole shows 80.5 per cent males and 19.5 per cent females.

Prevailing hours of labor (Table 9).—Since 1914 there has been a marked shortening of the working day in Pennsylvania. In that year only 8.8 per cent of the wage earners were reported in the group "48 and under" as against 42.3 per cent in 1919. In 1914 the "60" and "Over 60" groups constituted 23.1 per cent of the total wage earners, as compared with 14.2 per cent in 1919.

Size of establishments, by average number of wage earners, for selected industries and for cities (Table 10).—The predominance of the number of small establishments, when based on the number of wage earners employed, is evidenced in this table by the fact that of the total number of establishments in the state, 92.9 per cent were in the several classes having fewer than 101 wage earners, while such establishments employed but 24.9 per cent of the total number of wage earners. On the other hand, the establishments employing an average of more than 100 wage earners represented only 7.1 per cent of the total number of manufacturing establishments in the state, but reported 75.1 per cent of the total number of wage earners.

Size of establishments, by value of products (Table 11).—At the censuses of 1909 and 1914 establishments with products valued at "$100,000 to $1,000,000" constituted one group, but at the census of 1919 this group was subdivided into "$100,000 to $500,000" and "$500,000 to $1,000,000." Separate figures for the number of establishments and value of products have been compiled, however, from the returns for 1914. The table, therefore, gives combined figures for these two groups for all items for 1909, and for average number of wage earners and value added by manufacture for 1914.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for selected industries (Table 12).—In the preparation of this table it was necessary in several instances to combine the establishments of one group of the industry with those of some other group of that industry to avoid the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 13).—This table strikingly illustrates the fact that the number of establishments of itself is no real index of manufacturing activities.

Character of ownership (Table 14).—The predominance of corporate ownership is clearly brought out in this table. Although corporations owned but 28.2 per cent of the number of establishments in the state in 1919, they reported 86.4 per cent of the average number of wage earners and 87.7 per cent of the total value of products. During the five-year period 1914 to 1919, the average number of wage earners in corporations increased 260,807, or 36.2 per cent, and the value of products, $4,094,363,689, or 176.5 per cent.

Manufactures, by population groups, in cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 15).—This table shows that the combined number of establishments in the 77 cities in 1919 represented 59.8 per cent of the total in the state. They reported in that year 61.7 per cent of the average number of wage earners and 63.7 per cent of the total value of products.

Principal industries in cities of 50,000 inhabitants or more, with per cent of total for state (Table 16).—This table presents the principal industries in each of the 13 cities in the state having 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1920, the figures being given for those which can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Number and horsepower of types of prime movers (Table 17).—The total horsepower reported in 1919, as compared with that for 1914, shows an increase of 904,528 horsepower, or 25.5 per cent. This increase, however, is chiefly due to the gain of 629,690 horsepower, or 175.8 per cent, in rented power. The owned power increased 274,838 horsepower, or 8.6 per cent, during the five-year period.

Fuel consumed (Table 18).—This table shows the quantities of the principal kinds of fuel used by all the manufacturing plants in the state in 1919 and 1914, and gives separately for 1919 the amounts consumed by a number of important industries which use considerable quantities of fuel, and by the cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more. There were increases in each of the several kinds of fuel used in 1919 as compared with 1914. In 1919, of the total anthracite coal consumed, 47.2 per cent was used in the steam-railroad repair shops, the manufacture of cement, iron and steel rolling mills, petroleum refining, and zinc smelters; two industries combined—coke and iron and steel rolling mills—consumed 73.6 per cent of the bituminous coal; 82 per cent of the coke used was consumed in the iron and steel blast furnaces, while iron and steel rolling mills used 39.9 per cent of the fuel oils and 57.8 per cent of the gas.

[2] Among the industries for which statistics can not be shown separately without the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments are a number having products in excess of some for which figures are shown in the table. Of these industries the most important are the following: "Aluminum manufactures"; "cars, electric-railroad, not including operations of railroad companies"; "locomotives, not made by railroad companies"; and "smelting and refining, zinc."

SPECIAL STATISTICS.

For a number of important industries the Census Bureau collects, by means of special schedules, certain details which do not appear on the general schedule. Data for 24 of these industries in Pennsylvania are here presented.

Iron and steel, blast furnaces (Table 19).—This table presents the statistics for the pig-iron industry of the state for 1919, 1914, and 1909. Pennsylvania ranks first in the industry and produced 39.3 per cent of the tonnage of the country in 1919, 41.9 per cent in 1914, and 42.5 per cent in 1909. All but eight-tenths of 1 per cent was coke iron in 1919, 1.3 per cent in 1914 and 6 per cent in 1909. The small production by other fuels, 1919, was mixed anthracite and coke iron and a small amount of charcoal iron.

The production in 1919 represents an increase in tonnage of 23.3 per cent over that of 1914 and 10.1 per cent over 1909, with an increase in value of 133.9 per cent and 88.5 per cent, respectively. Iron for steel making—the basic, Bessemer, and low-phosphorus grades—constituted 90.5 per cent of the production in 1919, 87.2 per cent in 1914, and 81.3 per cent in 1909 (not including the ferroalloys), and foundry iron 6.8 per cent in 1919, 8.2 per cent in 1914, and 14.4 per cent in 1909. Of the pig-iron output, 66.8 per cent were handled molten and 25.6 per cent were machine cast in 1919; 59.6 per cent molten and 28.2 per cent machine cast in 1914; and 54.9 molten and 26.4 per cent machine cast in 1909.

Steel works and rolling mills (Table 20).—This table presents the statistics for the steel furnaces and hot-rolling mills in Pennsylvania for 1919, 1914, and 1909. The plants produced 44.6 per cent of the rolled, forged, and other classified products of the country in 1919, 48.1 per cent in 1914, and 49.3 per cent in 1909. There was an increase of 31.3 per cent in tonnage in 1919, as compared with 1914, and 22.5 per cent with respect to 1909, and in total value of the rolled, forged, or other classified products, an increase of 180 per cent, 1914 to 1919, and 152 per cent, 1909 to 1919. The figures show an average value of approximately $69 per ton in 1919, $32 in 1914, and $34 in 1909.

The year 1909 was one of expansion following the depression of 1908; the crest was reached in 1910, with a slight depression in 1911, and prosperous years in 1912 and 1913. In 1914, however, the industry was greatly depressed because of the beginning of the European war, and in November, the month of minimum employment for that year, there were but 114,695 wage earners employed in the establishments in the state, whereas at the close of 1909 there were 148,591.

In 1919, though the average number of wage earners for the year, 171,715, was an increase of 30 per cent as compared with 1914, the beginning of the year, January, with 202,630 wage earners, was the month of maximum activity, followed by a steady decline through May, after which there was a partial recovery through August, and then a drop in the number of wage earners to a minimum of 145,252 in October.

In 1919 the steel production, 15,300,068 tons, was 63.5 per cent of the capacity of the furnaces operating on double turn, for 300 working-days, as compared with 55.2 per cent in 1914 and 73.2 per cent in 1909.

Wire (Table 21).—This table presents the statistics for the wire drawing industry, 1919. At prior censuses the industry for the state was not reported separately. The statistics for materials and products include the independent wire-drawing establishments not operated in conjunction with the mills that roll the wire rods, and which constitute the classified industry, and also the wire-drawing departments of the mills that roll the rods. The wire-drawing departments of the rolling mills produce the greater portion of the wire product of the state, hence the classified wire industry of itself is not representative of the magnitude of the industry. The production, therefore, of the wire-drawing departments of the rolling mills, which is included in the statistics for such mills, is also included in this table for the wire industry. The figures for materials and products are combined so as to show the total production of iron and steel wire products and the materials consumed in their manufacture, irrespective of whether the product is that of an independent wire-drawing establishment or of one operated in conjunction with a mill that rolls the rods.

The tonnage of drawn iron and steel wire, 895,056 net tons, constituted 35.7 per cent of the total iron and steel wire production of the United States and embraced 11 establishments operated as independent wire mills, and 7 wire-drawing departments of mills that rolled the wire rods.

Tin plate and terneplate (Table 22).—This table presents the statistics for materials and products for the tin-plate and terneplate industry for the state, the same including the independent dipping establishments not operated in conjunction with rolling mills and which constitute the classified industry and also the dipping departments of the rolling mills for 1919, 1914, and 1909. The detailed statistics for materials and for products are combined so as to show the total production of tin plate and terneplate and the materials consumed in their manufacture, irrespective of whether the product is that of an independent establishment or of one operated as a department of a mill that rolls the black plates. The production of the dipping departments of the rolling mills is included in the statistics for that industry.

Pennsylvania produced 48.6 per cent of the tin-plate and terneplate product of the country in 1919, 56.1 per cent in 1914, and 52.9 per cent in 1909. In the way of equipment, the plants reported, in 1919, 413 tin and terne sets with a daily capacity, on single turn, of 3,121,428 pounds. In 1914 there were 314 sets of 1,882,408 pounds daily capacity.

With over $5,000,000,000 worth of textiles produced in the United States in 1919, Pennsylvania reported 15.1 per cent of the total, which credits this state as being the second most important state in total value of products reported for all kinds of textiles. Next to iron and steel, textiles were the most important among the manufacturing interests of the state in 1919, and contributed 10.7 per cent of the total value of products for all industries within the state. In 1919 there were 1,467 textile establishments in Pennsylvania, giving employment to 154,402 wage earners.

Statistics in detail for the principal textile industries for the state follow.

Wool manufactures is composed of a group of industries using wool as a basic material in the manufacture of woolen, worsted, and felt goods, carpets and rugs, and wool-felt hats.

Wool manufactures in Pennsylvania has shown a general decline in quantity production during the ten years from 1909. With but two exceptions, those of waste and noils and tops, each of the principal materials shows a decrease in the quantity used in 1919 as compared with 1909. Raw wool, woolen yarn, and worsted yarn, the three most important materials, according to cost, and which combined represent more than one-half the total cost of all materials, have decreased in quantity 26.3, 25.1, and 47.7 per cent, respectively, during the ten-year period 1909–1919.

Over one-third of the total value of products of this industry in 1919 was represented by woven goods, exclusive of carpets and rugs, and woven felts, and according to the number of square yards the production decreased in both 1914 and 1919, with the result that for the ten years from 1909 to 1919 there was a total decrease of 29 per cent in quantity. Partly manufactured products for sale also represented over one-third of the total value of products, and during the same period, 1909 to 1919, showed a decrease of 37.1 per cent in quantity. The manufacture of carpets and rugs has shown a falling off since 1909, and the production, measured in square yards, for 1919 was less than one-half that of 1909.

Knit goods (Table 25).—This table shows the quantity and cost of the principal materials used, and the quantity and value of the chief products for the years 1919, 1914, and 1909.

Among the textile industries in Pennsylvania the knit-goods industry ranked second in 1919, according to value of products, and this value was the second largest reported by any state for the knit-goods industry. In the ten-year period covered by the table the combined raw and partly manufactured materials used did not show as much change in the total quantity as in the individual kinds of material.

There was a decrease of 61.5 per cent in the quantity of raw cotton used, from 1909 to 1919, but an increase of 138.1 per cent in raw wool, 33.6 per cent in woolen yarn, 59.2 per cent in worsted yarn, 136 per cent in merino yarn, 939.4 per cent in silk yarn, and, from 1914 to 1919, an increase of 34.5 per cent in artificial silk yarn.

The reason for the use of different basic materials in 1919 from those of the previous ten years is chiefly due to the demand for silk and for wool hosiery in place of cotton. Although the quantity of hosiery (hose and half hose), made of all kinds of materials, increased only 1,264,687 dozen pairs, or 4.5 per cent, from 1909 to 1919, it will be seen that during the same period the quantity of cotton hosiery decreased 9,417,033 dozen pairs, or 34.7 per cent, while silk and silk-mixed hosiery increased 9,535,132 dozen pairs, or 6,553.5 per cent. In 1909 cotton hosiery constituted 97.5 per cent of the total quantity and 93 per cent of the total value of all hosiery produced in the state, which is in striking contrast to the condition in 1919 when cotton hosiery formed only 60.9 per cent of the total quantity and 35.3 per cent of the total value.

[1] Includes silk-mixed hose and half hose. [2] Not reported separately.

The loss in cotton hosiery was more than compensated by the gain in silk and silk-mixed hosiery. In 1909 silk and silk-mixed hosiery formed only five-tenths of 1 per cent of the quantity and 3.9 per cent of the value of all hosiery produced in the state, while in 1919 silk and silk-mixed hosiery formed 33.3 per cent of the quantity and 59.7 per cent of the value.

Since the manufacture of hosiery was first introduced in the United States as a machine industry, Pennsylvania, the original hosiery state, has held the lead in this branch of the knit-goods industry, and in 1919 contributed 34.4 per cent of the quantity and 40.5 per cent of the value of all hosiery made in the United States. It will be seen from the table that nearly two-thirds of the total value of knit goods produced in the state in 1919 was confined to hosiery, while underwear, fancy knit goods, and knitted cloth were less important, although they show in most cases substantial increases in quantity produced in 1919 as compared with the census of 1909.

Cotton manufactures (Table 26).—The cotton-manufacturing industry includes mills engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods, cotton small wares, and cotton lace. The materials and products for this industry are shown in considerable detail in Table 26 for the census years 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In Pennsylvania the manufacture of cotton textiles is becoming less important at each census. From 1909 to 1919 the decreases in the quantity of raw cotton and purchased cotton yarn used were 44.8 and 10.1 per cent, respectively. Combined these two materials formed 80.1 per cent of the total cost of materials in 1919 and 73.2 per cent in 1909.

The production of woven goods (over 12 inches in width), which in 1919 formed 53.7 per cent of the total value of products, decreased 37.3 per cent in quantity during the ten years shown in the table. This decrease is largely due to a quantity of miscellaneous light-weight goods contained in other woven goods, reported in 1919 as dress goods, ginghams, sheetings, and piece goods not specified. While comparable figures for 1909 are not available, it will be seen that in the five years from 1914 the production of Nottingham lace curtains decreased 28.9 per cent in pairs, while Nottingham lace curtain nets increased 127.5 per cent in number of linear yards. The quantity of yarns and waste for sale showed a falling off at both the census of 1914 and 1919, and during the ten-year period shown in the table the former decreased 45.6 per cent and the latter 43 per cent.

Silk manufactures (Table 27).—This table shows the quantity and cost of the principal materials and the quantity and value of the most important products of the silk industry in 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In 1919 there were 373 establishments, including 143 throwsters, in the silk-manufactures industry in Pennsylvania.

At the census of 1919 Pennsylvania took the lead for the first time, among the states, in value of products, in the manufacture of silk textiles, and at the same time this industry became of primary importance among the many kinds of textiles manufactured within the state.

Raw silk, which increased 80.9 per cent in quantity from 1909 to 1919, was the principal item of cost among the several kinds of materials used, and, in 1919, formed 63.8 per cent of the total cost of all materials for the industry within the state. In contrast with the decrease in quantity of silk yarns, cotton yarns showed an increase of 39.7 per cent from 1909 to 1919.

Broad silks were the principal products of the silk mills in Pennsylvania, the value of these forming 65.8 per cent in 1919 of the total value of products for this industry in the state, and the quantity increasing 90.3 per cent during the ten-year period 1909–1919. Of the value of broad silks manufactured in 1919, 82.7 per cent were that of all silk goods, the production of these goods having increased in quantity 138.6 per cent during the ten-year period shown in the table.

A larger amount of contract work on silk was done in this state than in any other. The character of this work is chiefly throwing. The amount of yarn which was thrown on commission has shown a constant increase, and in 1919 the number of pounds thrown was 60.5 per cent more than that thrown in 1909.

Hats, fur-felt (Table 28).—This table shows the quantity and cost of the principal materials used and the quantity and value of fur-felt hats manufactured in 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In 1919, 21.7 per cent of the total value of products for the fur-felt hat industry in the United States were reported for Pennsylvania. In 1914 the state ranked first among the states in value of fur-felt hats produced, but in 1919 dropped to third place, being exceeded by Connecticut and New York. In the ten years from 1909 to 1919 the quantity of hatters' fur used decreased 34.7 per cent, and the fur-felt hat bodies and hats in the rough decreased 72 per cent, while the production of fur-felt hats decreased 43.4 per cent during the same period.

Machinery used in textile mills (Table 29).—The different kinds of machines, which have been accepted by textile manufacturers as best indicating the trend of the industries, are shown in detail for several branches of textile manufactures in Pennsylvania for 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In comparing the machinery of 1909 with that of 1919 it will be seen that, with the exception of a slight increase in looms used in wool manufactures (not including carpets and rugs), all increases in machinery may be attributed to the silk and knit-goods industries. In the silk-manufactures industry from 1909 to 1919 spindles increased 58.2 per cent and looms 55.2 per cent. During the same period in the knit-goods industry, knitting machines increased 43.1 per cent and woolen cards 51.4 per cent. There was a decrease of 38.8 per cent in the spindles for this industry, largely due to the decrease in cotton spindles.

Printing and publishing (Tables 30 and 31).—Table 30 shows the number and aggregate circulation per issue of all newspapers and periodicals published in Pennsylvania as reported at the censuses of 1919, 1914, and 1909.

The reduction in number of publications and in circulation is due to various causes, among them being the high cost of materials and labor. The decrease for all publications is 19.6 per cent in number and 5.4 per cent in circulation.

The lack of a greater increase in circulation of dailies is due in part to the reduction in circulation of two foreign-language papers, one in German and the other in Yiddish; in part to the discontinuance of a number of dailies, one of which reported a considerable circulation at the census of 1914; and, in part, to the lower circulation reported by leading newspapers. The decrease in circulation of Sunday newspapers is likewise due to discontinuances and to reduction in circulation as actually reported by various papers. In some instances the daily and Sunday circulation of newspapers was given, in 1914, as the sworn statement to the Post Office Department, this being a statement of the average circulation for the previous six months. The census schedule calls for the "average circulation per issue for week ending December 31." One of the publications of large circulation reported as a semiweekly in 1914 was discontinued, a sporting weekly now being the only issue by that establishment.

The decrease in number and circulation of quarterly publications is due to the decrease in the reported circulation of religious quarterlies published by a number of evangelical denominations for Sunday School use, due in part, it is probable, to changes in methods of instruction.

Table 31 shows the number and circulation of foreign-language publications in Pennsylvania by period of issue, compared with those printed in English, for 1919, 1914, and 1909.

There was a decrease both in number and circulation of foreign-language publications for the five years 1914–1919. In 1919 the foreign-language circulation was 3.3 per cent of the total; in 1914 it was 4.8 per cent. The decrease was 353,279, or 34.3 per cent. The greatest reduction was in the circulation of German, and English-and-German publications. In 1919 there were 18 German publications with a circulation of 77,649, and 3 English-and-German publications with a circulation of 47,938; whereas, in 1914, there were 42 in German with a circulation of 227,694, and 7 in English-and-German with a circulation of 312,012. Of the German publications in 1919, 3 were dailies, 2 published in the morning and 1 in the afternoon; 2 were published on Sunday, and 13 were weeklies. Of the 3 English-and-German publications, 1 was a morning daily, 1 a Sunday, and 1 a weekly.

Other foreign-language publications were: Bohemian, 1 weekly and 1 monthly; Croatian and Hungarian each, 2 weeklies; Italian, 1 morning daily, 1 Sunday, and 11 weeklies; Lithuanian, 1 weekly, 1 semiweekly, and 1 monthly; Magyar, 2 weeklies; Polish, 1 morning daily, 1 Sunday, and 15 weeklies; Russian, 2 weeklies, 1 semiweekly, and 1 monthly; Ruthenian, 1 weekly; Slovak, 7 weeklies and 1 monthly; Ukranian, 1 triweekly, 1 weekly, and 1 semimonthly; Wendish, 1 weekly; Yiddish, 1 morning daily and 1 weekly; English-and-Italian, and English-and-Russian-and-Slovak and Russian-and-Slovak each, 2 weeklies; English-and-Slovak, 1 weekly; English-and-Spanish, 1 monthly; English-and-Spanish-and-Italian, 1 quarterly.

Pennsylvania leads all other states in the manufacture of leather. The total cost of raw stock, tanning materials, fuel, rent of power, etc., shows an increase in 1919 of $78,096,657, or 114.3 per cent, over 1914. The principal materials used were cattle hides and goat and kid skins. The former constituted 22.8 per cent of the total number treated in the United States and the latter 50.1 per cent. Other skins reported were calf and kip, sheep and lamb, cabretta, kangaroo, and wallaby.

The total value of products in 1919 formed 22.8 per cent of the total for the industry in the United States. The increase over 1914 of $126,136,817, or 148 per cent, in value of products is of even greater magnitude than the increase in cost of materials. Sole leather was the principal leather produced. Its value formed 47.8 per cent of the total for the state and, compared with 1914, shows an increase of slightly more than 100 per cent. Goat and kid skins show a substantial increase both in quantity and value. All other leather consisted chiefly of sole leather offal, cattle side upper, belting and patent leather skivers, fleshers, etc. The value was more than double the amount reported for 1914. Work on materials for others increased by 276.6 per cent.

Though the manufacture of boots, shoes, and slippers is not one of the leading industries of the state of Pennsylvania, it is prominent among the many industries in the state. There was a slight increase in the number of pairs of boots and shoes produced in 1919 as compared with 1914. This is in strong contrast with the large increase shown for the previous five-year period. Of the different classes of footwear reported, men's and women's both show a gain, while boys' and youths', and misses' and children's show a loss for the census period 1914–1919. More than one-half of the total number of pairs of shoes reported were misses' and children's. Slippers, infants' shoes and slippers, other footwear, and other products, all show increases over 1914. All other footwear includes sandals, moccasins, and canvas and athletic shoes.

Table 34 gives the various classes of footwear produced in 1919, classified according to the method of manufacture, 1919 and 1914.

Welted shoes formed 39.5 per cent of the total for the state in 1919 as against 27.2 per cent in 1914. Turned shoes formed 30.5 per cent of the total in 1919 and 39.4 per cent in 1914, and McKay 28.5 and 30.5 per cent, respectively. Only a few wood or metal fastened shoes were reported, these representing but 1.4 per cent of the total in 1919 and less than 3 per cent in 1914. Practically all the turned and more than 50 per cent of the McKay's were misses' and children's. Nearly 90 per cent of all other footwear was turned.

Chemical industries. (Table 35).—This table presents the statistics of products for the chemical industries, 1919, 1914, and 1909. The state ranks third in the industry, being exceeded by New York and New Jersey.

The production, 1919, comprises all products reported by 79 establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of chemicals, including those of coal-tar origin and sulphuric, nitric, and mixed acids, amounting to $85,242,700 and chemicals to the value of $9,403,319 manufactured by establishments included under other industry classifications. In 1914 there were 45 establishments in the classified industries constituting the group, and in 1909, 43 establishments. There was an increase of 280 per cent in the value of all products for the period 1914–1919, and 32 per cent for 1909–1914.

Petroleum, refining (Table 36).—This table shows the cost of materials, the quantity and value of the principal products, and details of the equipment reported in 1919, 1914, and 1909. Measured by value of products, Pennsylvania ranked fourth among the states in the petroleum-refining industry in 1919, being exceeded by New Jersey, Texas, and California.

From 1914 to 1919 the total cost of materials increased $90,596,711, or 204.1 per cent, and the value of products $125,950,531, or 238.2 per cent. The quantity of crude petroleum used as material increased from 17,523,078 barrels of 42 gallons to 28,832,738 barrels, or 64.5 per cent. More than one-half of the crude petroleum used (55 per cent) was from the Appalachian field (Pennsylvania grade); 19.5 per cent was Mid-Continent; 24.3 per cent, Gulf and Mexican; and 1.2 per cent, Illinois.

The total production of refined oils in 1919 was 22,134,606 barrels, of which fuel oils constituted 33.6 per cent; naphtha, gasoline, etc., 28.6 per cent; illuminating oils, 20.7 per cent, and lubricating oils, 17.1 per cent. In 1914 the production of refined oils was 13,526,498 barrels, of which illuminating oils formed 38.5 per cent; lubricating oils, 23.6 per cent; fuel oils, 20.7 per cent; and gasoline and naphtha, 17.2 per cent. There was an increase in the production of refined oils from 1914 to 1919 amounting to 8,608,108 barrels, or 63.6 per cent.

Coke (Table 37).—This table presents the statistics for the coke industry for 1919, 1914, and 1909. The state leads with 37.8 per cent of the total value of products for the United States in 1919, 43.3 per cent in 1914, and 54.1 per cent in 1909. The industry was represented by 123 establishments in 1919, 108 in 1914, and 146 in 1909. The value of all products in 1919, namely, $119,730,589, comprises $70,169,342 reported by 112 beehive-oven establishments and $49,561,247 by 11 by-product oven plants.

The value of all products in 1919 shows an increase of 178 per cent over that for 1914, whereas 1914 decreased 17 per cent compared with 1909.

The figures for coke and coal consumption are compiled by the United States Geological Survey. The increase in total coke production, 1914–1919, was but 1.2 per cent, resulting from a decrease of 3,439,067 tons in beehive coke and an increase of 3,682,505 tons in by-product coke. In 1909 by-product oven coke constituted 7.8 per cent of the total coke production; in 1914, 10.8 per cent; and in 1919, 28.6 per cent.

Glass (Table 38).—This table shows the quantity and value of the different classes of building glass and the value of pressed and blown glass, and of bottles and jars, and of all other products, for 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In 1919 Pennsylvania reported 30.7 per cent of the total value of glass manufactured in the United States. The total value of glass produced in this state represents an increase of 102.2 per cent over 1914. Window glass, the product of chief value among those for use in building, decreased 21.4 per cent in quantity, but increased 107.4 per cent in value over 1914. Obscured glass and plate glass also show decreased production with increased values during the same period. The total value of pressed and blown glass increased 86.1 per cent, and that of bottles and jars 69.3 per cent, over 1914. Of the 102 establishments engaged in the manufacture of glass in the state in 1919, 40 produced building glass, 34 pressed and blown glass, and 35 bottles, jars, etc. Pennsylvania ranked first in the manufacture of building glass and pressed and blown glass, and second in the production of bottles and jars.

There was a large production of pigments in 1919, chiefly zinc oxide and lithopone, reported by establishments included under other industry classifications. The aggregate value of products within the scope of the paint and varnish industries, but manufactured by establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of other commodities, was $19,155,537.

Slaughtering and meat packing (Table 40).—This table presents for the last three census periods, 1919, 1914, and 1909, the number and cost of all classes of animals slaughtered; the cost of all other materials, which includes that for poultry, dressed meat purchased for curing, cottonseed oil for making lard compounds and substitutes, butter and whole milk for making oleomargarine, materials for making ice, curing materials, seasoning, refrigeration, containers, fuel, rent of power, mill supplies, and freight; and the quantity and value of the most important products that can be presented without disclosing individual operations. The value of the minor and auxiliary specified products are grouped under "All other products," and include canned goods, canned sausage, lard compounds and substitutes, oleomargarine, hoofs, horns, horntips, strips and waste, skins (other than cattle, calf, and sheep), hog and cattle hair, ice, butter, cheese, sauerkraut, and smoked fish.

[1] Not reported separately.

The growth of the industry, as indicated by the number of animals slaughtered in the last census period, was slight, as there were only 159,564 more beeves, calves, and hogs in 1919 than in 1914, and sheep and lambs decreased 152,484. There was an actual decrease in the meat production as the beeves, calves, and hogs slaughtered in 1919 were lighter weight than in 1914. The average gross weight of beeves was 1,083 in 1914 and 1,007 in 1919; of calves, 152 in 1914 and 145 in 1919; and of hogs 180 in 1914 and 174 in 1919. The production of fresh and cured meat, including sausage, in 1919 was 367,677,888 pounds, and in 1914, 387,451,315 pounds. a decrease of 19,773,427 pounds, or 5.1 per cent.

Owing to this, Pennsylvania lost four points in value of products in the slaughtering and meat-packing industry in the United States. In 1914 the state ranked seventh and in 1919 eleventh.

Flour-mill and gristmill products (Table 41).—This table shows the kinds, quantities, and values of the different products of these mills in 1919, 1914, and 1909.

Of the total value of products for the industry in the state, wheat flour formed 53 per cent in 1919 and 45.4 per cent in 1914. Bran and middlings and feed and offal combined formed 36.3 per cent and 39.9 per cent, respectively, for the two years. Illustrative of the high prices of commodities in 1919 as compared with 1914, the value of wheat flour produced increased 86 per cent, while the quantity decreased 16.7 per cent during the five-year period.

Butter, cheese, and condensed milk (Table 42).—This table presents the principal products of the industry for 1919, 1914, and 1909. The total value of all products from 1914 to 1919 increased $28,876,962, or 184.1 per cent, this increase being due principally to the growth of the condensed and evaporated milk branch of the industry, which shows a gain from 1914 to 1919 of 115,242,767 pounds, or 165.3 per cent, in quantity, and $20,735,149, or 467.4 per cent, in value.

In 1919 the value of condensed and evaporated milk combined formed 56.5 per cent of the total value of products of the industry. During the five-year period 1914–1919 the value of butter increased 23.4 per cent, while the quantity decreased 39.2 per cent.

Electrical machinery, apparatus, and supplies (Table 43.)—This table shows the value of the various kinds of electrical machinery, apparatus, and supplies manufactured in 1919, so far as they can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments. The state ranked third in total value of products for the industry for the United States.

The value of products increased $65,953,912, or 335.7 per cent, between the two periods. There was an increase of 3,046,796 horsepower, or 220.8 per cent, in the total capacity of the engines during the five-year period. The total number of engines built increased from 18,147 in 1914 to 39,960 in 1919, an increase of 21,813, or 120.2 per cent.

The general trend throughout the industry was to build the larger units. An illustration of this will be seen in the grouping of "Under 10" horsepower, where the number of engines built shows a decrease of 1,488, or 19.5 per cent, the only decrease shown for the several classes enumerated.

Brass, bronze, and copper products (Table 45).—This table shows the chief products of the industry in Pennsylvania at the censuses of 1919 and 1914. At the census of 1919, castings and machinery fittings was the product of chief value, and formed 61.1 per cent of the total value of products. Comparative figures for 1914 for this item are not available. During the five-year period 1914 to 1919 the value of ingots and bars increased $4,331,533, or 188.6 per cent.

Book paper (plain, coated, cover, and plate) was the leading product of the industry in the state in 1919, as well as at the two preceding censuses, representing 26.9 per cent of the total value of products in 1919, 38.1 per cent in 1914, and 32.4 per cent in 1909. Fine paper was the next in importance, representing 16.6 per cent of the total value of products in 1919.

To avoid disclosing operations of individual establishments, poster paper, hanging paper, newspaper, and other grades are included in the item "All other paper."

Laundries (Table 47).—Statistics for power laundries are not included in the general tables nor in the totals for manufacturing industries. Table 47, however, summarizes the statistics for such laundries in Pennsylvania for 1919 and 1914.

Dyeing and cleaning (Table 48).—Statistics for dyeing and cleaning establishments that were operated by mechanical power in 1919 are presented in this table. Statistics for such establishments are not included in the general tables nor in the totals for manufacturing industries since 1900. This presentation is the first of its kind that has been made since the census statistics were confined to manufacturing industries as distinguished from the hand trades, household industries, etc.

Tables 49 and 50 summarize the statistics for custom mills for 1919 and 1909. The value of products for custom sawmills represents the amount charged for the work performed and that for custom gristmills the selling value of the grain milled.

GENERAL TABLES.

Table 51 gives, for 1919, 1914, and 1909, the number of establishments, average number of wage earners, primary horsepower, wages, cost of materials, and value of products for selected industries in the state and in 10 of the cities having 50,000 or more inhabitants; and similar data for all industries combined for Bethlehem, Chester, and Lancaster, and the cities having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, for which comparative figures are available, and can be presented without disclosing individual operations.

Table 52 presents, for 1919, for the state as a whole and for cities having 50,000 or more inhabitants, statistics in detail for each industry for which figures can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments, and the statistics for all industries combined for each of the cities in the state having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, for which figures can be shown without disclosing individual operations.

RHODE ISLAND.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

General character of the state.—Rhode Island has a gross area of 1,248 square miles, of which 1,067 represent land surface. The inhabitants of the state in 1900 numbered 428,556; in 1910, 542,610; and in 1920, 604,397. In total population Rhode Island ranked thirty-eighth among the states in 1920. The number of inhabitants per square mile in 1910 was 508.5, the corresponding figure for 1920 being 566.4, Rhode Island ranking first in this respect among the states.

In 1920 there were 11 cities in the state—Bristol, Central Falls, Cranston, Cumberland, East Providence, Newport, Pawtucket, Providence, Warwick, West Warwick, and Woonsocket—having more than 10,000 inhabitants. The combined population of these cities in that year was 501,362, forming 83 per cent of the total population for Rhode Island, and in 1919 they reported 82.7 per cent of the value of the state's manufactured products.

Importance and growth of manufactures (Table 1).—The increases in wages, cost of materials, and the value of products, from 1914 to 1919, as presented in Table 1, are in a great measure due to the changes in industrial conditions brought about by the World War. The increases, however, in average number of wage earners and horsepower are significant of the growth of manufacturing activities in the state. The addition of the Federal income tax since 1914 accounts for the large increase in "Rent and taxes."

Statistics for the state, by counties (Table 2.)—Figures are not available for comparison of county totals for 1919 with those for prior censuses. Providence County, which includes the cities of Central Falls, Cranston, Cumberland, East Providence, Pawtucket, Providence, and Woonsocket, is far the most important, reporting 84.7 per cent of the average number of wage earners in the state and 86.8 per cent of the value of products.

Principal industries, ranked by value of products (Table 3).—The ranking of industries by value of products is not always conclusive as indicating their importance from a manufacturing standpoint. In many instances their ranking would change materially if based upon the average number of wage earners or value added by manufacture.

Persons engaged in manufacturing industries (Table 4).—The age classification of the average number of wage earners in this and other tables is an estimate obtained by the method described in the "Explanation of terms." The classification by sex for 1919 was reported separately, but for 1914 and 1909 was obtained in the same manner as the distribution by age. Figures for individual industries will be found in Table 29.

Average number of wage earners for selected industries (Table 5).—The industries covered by this table are those which employed 600 or more wage earners in 1919 and for which statistics can be shown without the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Average number of wage earners, by sex and age, and value of products for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 6).—During the census period 1914–1919, all cities show increases in value of products, due largely to the increased value of commodities at the later period. The city of Pawtucket shows a noticeable increase during this five-year period, 46.3 per cent in the average number of wage earners and 222.4 per cent in value of products.

Wage earners, by months (Table 7).—The statistics for wage earners in this table are intended to show the steadiness of employment, or the reverse, in accordance with the industrial conditions existing during the several census years.

Wage earners, by months, for selected industries and for cities (Table 8).—In addition to the number of wage earners employed by months, similar data are given for males and females for all industries combined, and also for the 11 cities in the state having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1919. There were a number of industries in the state in 1919 in which the number of female wage earners predominated.

Prevailing hours of labor (Table 9).—Since 1914 there has been a marked shortening of the working-day in Rhode Island. In that year only 5.2 per cent of the wage earners were reported in the group "48 and under" as against 45.9 per cent in 1919. In 1914, the "60" and "over 60" groups constituted 4.7 per cent of the total wage earners, as compared with four-tenths of 1 per cent in 1919.

Size of establishments, by average number of wage earners, for selected industries and for cities (Table 10).—The predominance of the number of small establishments, when based on the number of wage earners employed, is evidenced in this table by the fact that of the total number of establishments in the state, 88.8 per cent were in the several classes having fewer than 101 wage earners, while such establishments employed but 19 per cent of the total number of wage earners. On the other hand, the establishments employing an average of more than 100 wage earners represented only 11.2 per cent of the total manufacturing establishments in the state, but reported 81 per cent of the total number of wage earners.

Size of establishments, by value of products (Table 11).—At the censuses of 1909 and 1914 establishments with products valued at "$100,000 to $1,000,000" constituted one group, but at the census of 1919 this group was subdivided into "$100,000 to $500,000" and "$500,000 to $1,000,000." Separate figures for the number of establishments and value of products have been compiled, however, from the returns for 1914. The table, therefore, gives combined figures for these two groups for all items for 1909, and for the average number of wage earners and value added by manufacture for 1914.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for selected industries (Table 12).—In the preparation of this table it was necessary in several instances to combine the establishments of one group with those of some other group of the industry to avoid the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 13).—This table strikingly illustrates the fact that the number of establishments of itself is no real index of the extent of manufacturing activities.

Character of ownership (Table 14).—The predominance of corporate ownership is clearly brought out in this table. Although corporations owned but 34.6 per cent of the number of establishments in the state in 1919, they reported 90 per cent of the average number of wage earners and 91.2 per cent of the total value of products. During the five-year period 1914–1919, the average number of wage earners in corporations increased 30,833, or 32.5 per cent, and the value of products, $444,173,534, or 187.2 per cent.

Manufactures, by population groups, in cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 15).—This table shows that the combined number of establishments in the 11 cities in 1919 represented 85.7 per cent of the total in the state. They reported in that year 83.4 per cent of the average number of wage earners and 82.7 per cent of the value of products.

Principal industries in Pawtucket and Providence, with per cent of total for the state (Table 16).—This table includes all industries in these two cities having products of $500,000 and over for which figures can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments. The textile industry was of exceptional importance in each of these cities in 1919. Of the industries shown in Table 16, the value of the products of textiles in that year formed 61 per cent of the total for all industries in Pawtucket and 28.2 per cent in Providence.

Number and horsepower of types of prime movers (Table 17).—The total horsepower reported in 1919, as compared with that for 1914, shows an increase of 51,162 horsepower, or 19 per cent. This increase was wholly confined to rented power, which increased 64,743 horsepower, or 187.4 per cent, during the five-year period, while owned power decreased 13,581 horsepower, or 5.8 per cent.

Fuel consumed (Table 18).—This table shows the principal kinds of fuel used by the manufacturing plants in the state in 1919 and 1914, and gives separately for 1919 the amounts consumed by a number of important industries which use considerable quantities of fuel. Three branches of the textile industry, namely, the cotton-goods and the woolen and worsted goods industries, consumed 35.2 per cent of the bituminous coal and 43.5 per cent of the fuel oils. The largest quantity of anthracite coal, 30.5 per cent of the total shown for the state, was used in the dyeing and finishing of textiles. The cotton-goods industry was the largest consumer of coke, using 27 per cent of the total.

SPECIAL STATISTICS.

For a number of important industries the Census Bureau collects, by means of special schedules, certain details which do not appear on the general schedule. Data for five of these industries in Rhode Island are here presented.

Textiles.—The textile industries—comprising cotton manufactures, including cotton small wares and cotton lace; woolen and worsted goods; silk goods, including throwsters; knit goods; cordage and twine; felt goods; fur-felt hats; and dyeing and finishing textiles—constitute by far the most important group of industries in the state. This group, designated as "combined textiles," provided employment in 1919 to 76,352, or 54.7 per cent of the total average number of wage earners in Rhode Island, and contributed 58.3 per cent to the value of products of the state's manufacturing enterprises.

Rhode Island ranked second in 1919 among the states in value of products in the woolen and worsted goods industry; fifth in cotton goods; fifth in dyeing and finishing textiles; sixth in silk goods; and thirteenth in knit goods.

Cotton manufactures (Table 19).—This table shows for Rhode Island the quantity and cost of the principal materials used, and details as to quantity and value of products in cotton manufactures, comprising the cotton-goods, cotton small-wares, and the cotton-lace industries, for 1919, 1914, and 1909.

In 1919 the combined value of the products of the cotton-goods industry, as a whole, represented 23.7 per cent of the total value of products of all the manufacturing enterprises in the state.

The cost of materials increased 248.3 per cent between 1914 and 1919 and the value of products 256.9 per cent. Raw cotton constituted 53.3 per cent of the total cost of materials in 1919. Of the cotton consumed in 1919, 81.2 per cent was domestic and 18.8 per cent foreign, and, in 1914, 90.2 per cent domestic and 9.8 per cent foreign. The increase in quantity of foreign cotton used in 1919, as compared with 1914, was 119 per cent, and the increase in cost 383.5 per cent.

Yarns purchased in 1919 represented 29 per cent of the total cost of materials, an increase over 1914 of 144.4 per cent in quantity and 476 per cent in value. Cotton yarn predominated in 1919 with 99.2 per cent and in 1914 with 96.5 per cent of the total quantity of yarns purchased.

There was an increase from 1914 to 1919 of 64.8 per cent in quantity of silk yarns purchased and 159.3 per cent in cost; 283.6 per cent in quantity of cotton waste and 373.1 per cent in its cost.

The value of woven goods in 1919 represented 62.7 per cent of the total value of the products of the cotton industry, and the yarns manufactured for sale 14.1 per cent. The goods designated as sheetings, muslins, and shirtings formed 50.1 per cent of the total number of square yards of cloth woven in 1919 and 34.4 per cent of the total value of the woven goods; in 1914 and 1909, respectively, 60.4 per cent and 68 per cent of the total yardage and 51.3 per cent and 57.8 per cent of the total value.

The production of sheetings shows a decrease of 41.4 per cent during the 1914–1919 period in the number of square yards but an increase of 87.3 per cent in value; and muslins, an increase of 10.4 per cent in yardage and an increase of 237 per cent in value.

Velvets, corduroys, and plushes show a decrease of 5.1 per cent as compared with quantities produced in 1914 with an increase of 94.6 per cent in value.

Although there was a marked increase in the value of woven goods, there was a decrease of 4.5 per cent in the number of square yards produced in 1919 as compared with 1909 and a decrease of 1.2 per cent as compared with 1914. The values, however, increased 252.7 per cent in 1919 over 1909 and 270.1 per cent over 1914. The yardage decreased 3.3 per cent from 1909 to 1914 and the value 4.7 per cent.

Yarns manufactured for sale show an increase of 80.3 per cent in quantity as compared with 1914 and an increase of 339.5 per cent in value.

Woolen and worsted goods (Table 20).—The quantity and cost of the principal materials and the quantity and value of the chief products reported for the woolen and worsted goods industry in Rhode Island, for 1919, 1914, and 1909, are presented in Table 20. Because of the similarity of materials and products the two industries are combined in this table.

In the woolen and worsted goods industry, the cost of materials in 1919 increased 180.1 per cent over that of 1914 and the value of products 187.9 per cent.

Manufacturers of woolen and worsted goods in this state generally produce a large share of their own yarn for the manufacture of woven goods. Wool was the principal material used, being 37 per cent of the total cost of materials in 1919, 36.9 per cent in 1914, and 44.6 per cent in 1909.

In 1919 foreign wool exceeded the quantity purchased in 1914 by 6.5 per cent and the cost by 204.5 per cent; domestic wool purchased shows a decrease of 12.1 per cent in quantity and an increase of 168.6 per cent in cost.

Of the total wool consumption in 1919, that of domestic origin represents 65 per cent of the quantity and 63.2 per cent of the cost, the corresponding percentages for 1914 being 69.2 and 66.1, respectively, and for 1909, 73.5 and 67.9. The consumption of raw cotton decreased 60.3 per cent from 1914 to 1919, although the cost increased 26.7 per cent. During the same period there was an increase of 6 per cent in the quantity of cotton yarn purchased, with an increase of 182.6 per cent in cost; in woolen yarns, an increase of 656.3 per cent in quantity and 1,432.4 per cent in cost; in worsted yarns, a decrease of 20.9 per cent in quantity and an increase of 151.5 per cent in cost.

There was a marked increase in the use of spun silk yarn. In 1919 there was a decrease of 78 per cent in the quantity of reeled silk yarn purchased over that purchased in 1914 and an increase of 144.9 per cent in the quantity of spun silk yarn purchased.

Cotton-warp woven goods increased 28.2 per cent in value of production from 1914 to 1919, although it decreased 39.2 per cent in the number of square yards produced. To avoid the possibility of disclosing individual operations, statistics representing the quantity and value of wool and cotton-mixed woven goods are not published separately.

Woolen yarn produced for sale shows an increase in quantity of 327.7 per cent from 1914 to 1919 and a corresponding increase in value of 1,596.7 per cent; merino yarn a decrease in quantity of 49.1 per cent but an increase in value of 56.1 per cent. Noils produced for sale show the considerable increase in 1919 of 52.4 per cent over the quantity reported in 1914 and 280 per cent increase in value.

Silk goods (Table 21).—This table shows the cost of the principal materials used in the silk-goods industry in Rhode Island, and the total value of products for 1919, 1914, and 1909. The total cost of materials used in this industry increased 215.7 per cent in 1919 as compared with 1914.

In 1919 raw silk represented 39 per cent of the total cost of materials and spun silk 18.5 per cent; in 1914 these materials represented 34.7 per cent and 6.8 per cent, respectively. From 1914 to 1919, there was a decrease of 57.2 per cent in the total quantity of purchased cotton yarn, but an increase of 81.5 per cent in the cost. In 1919, 51 per cent more raw silk and 299.7 per cent more spun silk was used than in 1914, and 57.2 per cent less of cotton yarn.

The great demand for knitted cloth in 1919 is evidenced by an increase of 2,591.1 per cent in the number of square yards produced, as compared with 1914, and an increase in value of 1,621.9 per cent. This cloth, in 1919, represented 40 per cent of the total value of products of the knit-goods industry in the state, and but 6.6 per cent in 1914.

Machinery used in textile mills (Table 23).—The number of producing spindles reported in 1919, in the four principal subdivisions of the textile industry shows an increase of 8.3 per cent over 1914.

In 1919, 80.6 per cent of the total number of producing spindles was reported by the cotton-goods industry, an increase of 6.5 per cent over 1914; woolen and worsted goods, with 17.8 per cent of the total number, increased 12.2 per cent; silk goods, with 1.5 per cent of the total, increased 147.4 per cent; knit goods, on the other hand, showed a decrease of 64.4 per cent during this period.

The total number of active looms shows a slight increase, 1.9 per cent, from 1914 to 1919, but the silk-goods industry shows an increase of 98 per cent.

The woolen and worsted goods industry in 1919, as compared with 1914, shows an increase of 32.7 per cent in the number of woolen cards (sets), but a decrease of 26.2 per cent in the number of combing machines.

Printing and publishing (Table 24).—This table gives statistics as to the number and aggregate circulation per issue of all newspapers and periodicals published in Rhode Island in 1919, 1914, and 1909.

The increase in the circulation of all publications for the five-year period from 1914 to 1919 was 10.9 per cent. For the decade the increase was 45.4 per cent.

Of the daily papers, 9, with a circulation of 153,795, were published in the afternoon. Their increase in circulation for the five-year period from 1914 to 1919 was 22.6 per cent, and for the decade, 32.1 per cent.

The decrease in the circulation of weekly papers is due to the disappearance of a number of English weeklies, to the discontinuance of a German weekly of considerable circulation, and to the diminished circulation of other foreign weeklies.

Of the publications reported in 1919, 7, with a circulation of 44,600, were printed in foreign languages—a decrease of 8,900, or 16.6 per cent, since 1914. The number of these publications was the same at each census, but the number printed in each language was different. A German weekly was discontinued but the number was made good by a new Italian weekly. In French there were 1 afternoon daily, 2 weeklies, and 1 monthly publication; and in Italian, 3 weeklies.

Dyeing and cleaning (Table 26).—Statistics for dyeing and cleaning establishments that were operated by mechanical power in 1919 are presented in this table. Statistics for such establishments are not included in the general tables nor in the totals for manufacturing industries for censuses since 1900. This presentation is the first of its kind that has been made since the census statistics were confined to manufacturing industries as distinguished from the hand trades, household industries, etc.

GENERAL TABLES.

Table 28 gives, for 1919, 1914, and 1909, the number of establishments, average number of wage earners, primary horsepower, wages, cost of materials, and value of products, for selected industries in the state and in Pawtucket and Providence, and for the cities having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, for which comparable figures are available, similar data for all industries combined.

Table 29 presents, for 1919, for the state as a whole and for Pawtucket and Providence, statistics in detail for each industry for which figures can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments, and the statistics for all industries combined for each of the nine cities in the state having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

General character of the state.—South Carolina is one of the original thirteen states. Its gross area is 30,989 square miles, of which 30,495 represent land surface. The inhabitants of the state in 1900 numbered 1,340,316; in 1910, 1,515,400; and in 1920, 1,683,724. South Carolina ranked twenty-sixth in population and thirty-ninth in area among the states in 1920 and, with 55.2 inhabitants per square mile, seventeenth in density of population.

The urban population in 1920, that is the population residing in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, was 293,987, or 17.5 per cent of the total as against 14.8 per cent in 1910.

There were within the state in 1920 six cities with a population of more than 10,000—Anderson, Charleston, Columbia, Florence, Greenville, and Spartanburg. The population of these cities in 1920 was 172,784, 10.3 per cent of the total population for the state; while 21.3 per cent of the value of manufactured products in 1919 was reported by these cities.

Importance and growth of manufactures (Table 1).—The abnormal increases in wages, cost of materials, and the value of products being to a great extent due to a change in industrial conditions produced by the World War, the statistics for these items presented in Table 1 can not be used to exactly measure the growth of manufactures between the industrial censuses of 1914 and 1919. However, a comparison of the number of establishments, persons engaged, and the horsepower used in 1919 and 1914 shows a considerable increase in the manufacturing activities of the state.

Statistics for the state, by counties (Table 2).—Figures are not available for a comparison of county totals for other censuses with those for 1919. The statistics for this census emphasize the importance from a manufacturing standpoint of the counties in which are located the cities of over 10,000 population. These counties reported 46.3 per cent of the total number of wage earners and 51 per cent of the total value of products for the state.

Principal industries, ranked by value of products (Table 3).—The ranking of industries by value of product does not always show their true importance from a manufacturing standpoint. Their rank might materially change if based upon the average number of wage earners or value added by manufacture.

Persons engaged in manufacturing industries (Table 4).—The age classification of the average number of wage earners in this and other tables is an estimate obtained by the method described in the "Explanation of terms." The classification by sex for 1919 was reported separately, but for 1914 and 1909 was obtained in the same manner as the distribution by age. Figures for individual industries for 1919 will be found in Table 28.

Average number of wage earners for selected industries (Table 5).—The industries covered by this table are those which employed more than 400 wage earners in 1919 and for which statistics can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Average number of wage earners, by sex and age, and value of products for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 6).—Comparative figures for Florence are not available, since the city had less than 10,000 inhabitants at censuses prior to 1919.

Wage earners, by months (Table 7).—The statistics for wage earners in this table are intended to show the steadiness of employment, or the reverse, in accordance with the industrial conditions existing in the several census years.

Wage earners, by months, for selected industries and for cities (Table 8).—In addition to the number of wage earners employed by months, this table gives similar data for males and females for all industries combined for the state and for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more and also the number of females for industries in which a large number of females were employed.

Prevailing hours of labor (Table 9).—Since 1914 there has been a marked shortening of the working day in South Carolina. In that year, 89.2 per cent of the wage earners were included in the groups "60" and "over 60," as compared with 27.5 per cent in 1919.

Size of establishments, by average number of wage earners, for selected industries and for cities (Table 10).—The predominance of the number of small establishments, when based on the number of wage earners employed, is evidenced in this table by the fact that of the total number of establishments in the state 57.1 per cent were in the classes having less than 6 wage earners, while such establishments employed but 2.8 per cent of the total number of wage earners.

Size of establishments, by value of products (Table 11).—At the censuses of 1909 and 1914 establishments with products valued at $100,000 to $1,000,000 constituted one group, but at the census of 1919 this group was subdivided into "$100,000 to $500,000" and "$500,000 to $1,000,000." Separate figures for the number of establishments and value of products have been compiled, however, from the returns for 1914. The table, therefore, gives combined figures for these two groups in the case of all items for 1909, and in the case of average number of wage earners and value added by manufacture for 1914.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for selected industries (Table 12).—In the preparation of this table it was necessary in some instances to combine the establishments of one group with those of another group to avoid the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 13).—This table shows, for the six cities of the state having 10,000 inhabitants or more, the establishments grouped by value of products. It was necessary in some instances in this table as in Table 12 to combine the establishments of one group with those of some other group to avoid the possibility of disclosing individual operations.

Character of ownership (Table 14).—Although in the state the individual form of ownership decreased from 1914, the corporate and all other forms increased by a much larger number. The tendency both in the state outside and in the cities is for increased proportions which the average number of wage earners and value of products reported by the corporate group form of the total.

Manufactures, by population groups, in cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 15).—This table shows that the number of cities over 10,000 in the state increased by one from the previous census, and it shows also the increased importance of the manufactures in the cities.

Principal industries in Charleston, with per cent of total for the state (Table 16).—All industries in Charleston having products over $200,000, for which figures can be shown without disclosing the operations of individual establishments are presented in this table.

Number and horsepower of types of prime movers (Table 17).—A small decrease in the proportion of owned horsepower and a nearly similar increase in that of rented (electric) power is noticeable. The largest increase shown was in rented power, both electric and other.

Fuel consumed (Table 18).—This table shows the total quantities of the principal kinds of fuel used by manufacturing plants in the state in 1919 and 1914 and in the cities over 10,000 population in 1919. It also gives separately for 1919 the amounts consumed by a number of important industries which use considerable quantities of fuel.

[2] Designated at the census of 1914 as "muslins."
[3] Designated at the census of 1909 as "plain cloths for printing or converting" and "brown or bleached sheetings and shirtings."

The quantity of raw cotton consumed showed a slight increase from 1914 to 1919, but the industry showed a considerable increase in the quantity of cotton yarn purchased for further manufacture.

Strictly comparable figures for each type of cloth in the group comprising sheetings, muslins, and shirtings are not available for the reason that since 1914 certain changes have been effected in the method of reporting.

Fertilizers (Table 20).—The principal fertilizer products are shown in the following table, for 1919, 1914, and 1909:

[1] In addition cottonseed-oil mills and establishments in other lines of manufacture produced in 1919 49,761 tons of fertilizers valued at $2,222,841; and in 1914 55,715 tons valued at $1,273,063.

The materials consumed in 1919 included 221,885 tons of phosphate rock, 122,033 tons of purchased superphosphates, 53,759 tons of 50° sulphuric acid, 31,605 tons of pyrites, and 31,755 tons of sulphur, from which was manufactured 164,835 tons of sulphuric acid; giving a total of 218,594 tons of acid. Also, 20,565 tons of ammonium sulphate and cyanamid or lime of nitrogen, and 109,917 tons of tankage, cottonseed meal, and fish.

There were 50 establishments in 1919 primarily engaged in the manufacture of fertilizers. The total output of fertilizers by all establishments, primary and subsidiary, was 845,802 tons, an increase of 15.3 per cent over the production by all mills in 1914. The state ranked third in this industry in 1919, 1914, and 1909.

Lumber and timber products (Table 21).—This table presents statistics pertaining to the chief products of the lumber industry for 1919, 1914, and 1909. Lumbering is one of the oldest manufacturing industries in South Carolina. The period of greatest development in this industry, however, has been since 1890. The lumber reported cut for 1909 was the largest of record and the output for 1919 compared with that for 1909 decreased 30.7 per cent. The relative rank of this state in the production of lumber has remained practically the same for the last three quinquennial censuses. In 1909 and 1919 it ranked twentieth and in 1914 twenty-first.

Yellow pine is by far the most important species cut into lumber and in 1919 this wood contributed 544,475,000 feet, or 87.6 per cent of the total cut. Cypress contributed 27,482,000 feet, or 4.4 per cent; gum 21,917,000 feet, or 3.5 per cent; and oak 11,321,000 feet, or 1.8 per cent. Among other woods sawed into lumber in considerable quantities were tupelo, yellow poplar, ash, maple, and cedar.

Of the daily papers, 10 with a circulation of 51,546 were published in the afternoon. This circulation has increased 64.4 per cent from 1914 to 1919, and 178.4 per cent for the decade.

The seven morning papers had the larger circulation—65,176—an increase of 24 per cent from 1914 to 1919, and 96.8 per cent for the decade.

The increase in the circulation of all publications for the five-year period from 1914 to 1919 is 30.9 per cent and for the decade, 58 per cent. All publications were printed in the English language.

Laundries (Table 23).—Statistics for power laundries are not included in the general tables nor in the totals for manufacturing industries. This table, however, summarizes the statistics for such laundries in South Carolina for 1919 and 1914.

Table 27 gives for 1919, 1914, and 1909, the number of establishments, average number of wage earners, primary horsepower, wages, cost of materials, and value of products for all industries combined and for selected industries in the state and in Charleston; and, for cities having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, similar data for all industries combined.

Table 28 presents, for 1919, for the state as a whole and for Charleston, statistics in detail for each industry for which figures can be shown without disclosing individual operations; and for the five cities having from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants, similar data for all industries combined.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

General character of the state.—The gross area of South Dakota is 77,615 square miles, of which 76,868 represent land surface. Its population in 1900 was 401,570; in 1910, 583,888; and in 1920, 636,547. South Dakota ranked fourteenth in area and thirty-seventh in population in 1920. The density of population was 8.3 inhabitants per square mile in 1920, as compared with 7.6 in 1910.

In 1920 there were two cities in the state having more than 10,000 inhabitants, namely, Aberdeen and Sioux Falls. The combined population of these two cities, 39,713, formed 6.2 per cent of the total population of the state in 1920, and they reported 50.3 per cent of its manufactured products in 1919.

Importance and growth of manufactures (Table 1.)—This table summarizes the more important data relative to all classes of manufactures combined in South Dakota for the last five censuses and gives percentages of increase from census to census. The largest increases are shown for the five-year period 1914–1919, and while the abnormal increases in wages, cost of materials, and value of products are no doubt due to the industrial conditions brought about by the World War, the increases in number of wage earners, primary horsepower, and number of establishments are striking evidences of the advance made by the state in manufactures during the last census period. The addition of the Federal income tax since 1914 will account for the increase shown for "Rent and taxes."

Statistics for the state, by counties (Table 2).—Figures are not available for comparison of county totals for other censuses with those for 1919. Statistics for this census, however, show that three counties—Minnehaha, Brown, and Codington—reported 59.7 per cent of the total value of products for the state and 45 per cent of the total number of wage earners.

Principal industries, ranked by value of products (Table 3).—The ranking of industries by value of products is often misleading as to their real importance from a manufacturing standpoint. The three leading industries by value of products in this table would take lower rank if based upon the average number of wage earners or value added by manufacture.

Persons engaged in manufacturing industries (Table 4).—The age classification of the average number of wage earners in this and other tables is an estimate obtained by the method described in the "Explanation of terms." The classification by sex for 1919 was reported separately, but for 1914 and 1909 was obtained in the same manner as the distribution by age. Figures for individual industries will be found in Table 25.

Average number of wage earners for selected industries (Table 5).—The industries covered by this table are those which employed 80 or more wage earners in 1919 and for which statistics can be shown without the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Average number of wage earners, by sex and age, and value of products, for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 6).—Of the two cities, Aberdeen shows the larger percentage increase from 1914 to 1919—84.7 per cent for wage earners and 227.5 per cent for value of products; the corresponding figures for Sioux Falls were 58.3 per cent and 159.9 per cent, respectively.

Wage earners, by months (Table 7).—The statistics for wage earners are intended to show the steadiness of employment, or the reverse, in accordance with the industrial conditions existing during the several census years.

Wage earners, by months, for selected industries and cities (Table 8).—In addition to the number of wage earners employed by months, similar data are given for males and females for all industries combined and for the two cities. Confectionery was the only industry in the state of any importance having a larger number of female than male wage earners. Sioux Falls shows the largest proportion of female wage earners, 18.4 per cent, as compared with the state, 10.4 per cent, and Aberdeen, 8 per cent.

Prevailing hours of labor (Table 9).—The figures presented in this table indicate a shortening of the hours of labor during the last census period. In 1919, 44.6 per cent of the wage earners were in the groups 48 and under, as against 22.3 per cent in 1914, while the figures for the 60 and over groups were 32.2 per cent in 1919 and 45.7 per cent in 1914.

Size of establishments, by average number of wage earners, for selected industries (Table 10).—The small establishments predominated in the state, there being 1,379, or 97.5 per cent, having less than 21 wage earners each, compared with 35, or 2.5 per cent, having 21 or more. The establishments having less than 21 wage earners each reported 49.9 per cent of the total wage earners, while those having more than 20 wage earners reported 50.1 per cent.

Size of establishments, by value of products (Table 11).—The pronounced feature of this table is the decreased proportions shown for the smaller classes in average number of wage earners, value of products, and value added by manufacture.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for selected industries (Table 12).—In the preparation of this table it was necessary, in several instances for 1914, to combine the establishments of one group with those of another group, to avoid the possibility of disclosing the operations of individual establishments.

Size of establishments, by value of products, for cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 13).—This table emphasizes the fact that the number of establishments of itself is no real index of manufacturing activities.

Character of ownership (Table 14).—This table shows the tendency of manufactures toward the corporate form of ownership. Although the number of establishments under "Corporations" did not increase in the same proportion as "Individuals" and "All others," the increase in wage earners and value of products was much greater than that for the other groups.

Manufactures, by population groups, in cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more (Table 15).—The extent to which the manufacturing activities of the state are centralized in Sioux Falls and Aberdeen is shown in this table.

Number and horsepower of types of prime movers (Table 16).—The increase in electric motors driven by purchased current in 1919 as compared with 1914 was 190.7 per cent in number and 132 per cent in horsepower, whereas for owned power the gain in the use of internal-combustion engines was practically counterbalanced by the decrease in the use of steam and water engines and motors.

Fuel consumed (Table 17).—This table shows the total quantity of the principal kinds of fuel used by the manufacturing plants in the state in 1919 and 1914, and gives separately for 1919 the amounts used by a number of industries which are large consumers of fuel.

Printing and publishing (Table 20).—This table gives the number of publications and the aggregate circulation per issue for all newspapers and periodicals published in South Dakota during 1919, 1914, and 1909. There was a net loss of 19 in the total number of publications during the five-year period from 1914 to 1919, but the aggregate increase in circulation was 199,672, or 47.9 per cent. Of the 20 daily papers, exclusive of Sunday papers, 7 were published in the morning, with an average circulation of 50,757, and 13 in the evening, with an average circulation of 69,862. The 6 Sunday papers reported a circulation of 51,260. Included in "All other classes" are 4 semimonthly and 11 monthly publications and 1 quarterly. The only papers printed in foreign languages were 5 weeklies, 3 in German and 2 in Norwegian.

GENERAL TABLES.

Table 24 gives the number of establishments, average number of wage earners, primary horsepower, wages, cost of materials, and value of products for all industries combined and for selected industries in the state, and for the cities, Aberdeen and Sioux Falls, similar data for all industries combined, 1919, 1914, and 1909. Certain kindred industries are combined in some instances for comparison with 1909. Table 25 presents, for 1919, statistics in detail for the state as a whole and for each industry that can be shown without the disclosure of individual operations and for all industries combined for the cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more.
