- in obtaining a passport.
- to prove relationship in settling estates.
- in genealogy research, etc.
- to satisfy other situations where a birth or other certificate may be needed but is not available.

What method(s) of payment do you take?

You can search years 1910 through 2010. The census is done in years ending in "0." You can search any census year from 1910 through 2010, but not on the years in between. For example, you were born in 1954, you can search for a census record as soon as the year 1960.

The U.S. Census Bureau's records are arranged according to the address at the time of the census. Censuses are taken primarily for statistical, not legal, purposes. Attention is called to the possibility that the information shown in the census record may not agree with that given in your application. The record must be copied exactly as it appears on the census form. The U.S. Census Bureau CANNOT make changes even though it realizes that enumerators may have been misinformed or made mistakes in writing down the data they collected. Those agencies that accept census transcripts as evidence of age, relationship, or place of birth usually overlook minor spelling differences but would be reluctant to consider a record that was changed years later at an applicant's request.

If you authorize the U.S. Census Bureau to send your record to someone other than yourself, you must provide the name and address, including ZIP Code, of the other person/agency.

Birth certificates, including delayed birth certificates, are not issued by the U.S. Census Bureau. You can obtain the birth certificates from the Health Department or the Department of Vital Statistics of the state in which the applicant was born.

The average time should take you to fill out the BC-600, Application for Search of Census Records, including the time spent reading instructions is 15 minutes.
