MAP SHOWING THE ILLITERACY OF THE POPULATION.
Compiled from the Return of Population of the Ninth Census
OF THE UNITED STATES 1870

FRANCIS A. WALKER.

Explanations.
The Red lines indicate the boundaries of counties.
The figures within the squares indicate the number of inhabitants in the squares after the census of 1820.
The United States are divided into parts, each part showing the number of persons below the age of 20.

Note: In the construction of the Map the total of persons 21 years of age and under is not included with the 20, each person being shown separately.

Note: The sectional shaded stipple lines are not the United States and the line of the parallel lines are stippled due to many errors between the lines every six hundred miles.
