POPULATION OF WISCONSIN: APRIL 1, 1950

(This is one of a series of reports presenting final population figures for selected areas in each State. In this series, reports are numbered alphabetically by States. Additional reports will be issued as final figures for other States become available)

The total population of Wisconsin on April 1, 1950, was 3,434,575, according to final figures for the State released today by Roy V. Peel, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. During the previous 10 years, the population of the State increased by 296,988, or 9.5 percent, over the 3,137,587 persons enumerated in 1940. Among the States, Wisconsin ranked fourteenth in population. The 1950 population of Wisconsin was more than 11 times as large as its population in 1850 when it was first enumerated as a State in a Federal census.

According to the new urban definition, Wisconsin had 1,987,888 persons living in urban territory and 1,446,687 in rural territory. The urban population comprised 57.9 percent of the population of the State.

Between 1940 and 1950, 37 of the 71 counties gained population. The most rapid rate of increase was experienced in Waukesha County, which gained at a rate of 36.9 percent. More than one-third of the population gain of the State was accounted for by Milwaukee County, which had an increase of 104,162. Eight additional counties had increases of 10,000 or more. The counties in Wisconsin ranged in size from Florence with a population of 3,756 to Milwaukee with a population of 871,047.

There were 529 places in Wisconsin incorporated as cities or villages and 20 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. There were 2,225,618 persons living in the incorporated places, 319,255 of whom were in the 424 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Of the 38,089 inhabitants of the unincorporated places, 22,911 were in the 16 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Glen Flora village with a population of 91 to Milwaukee city with a population of 637,392.

Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the urban population of Wisconsin consisted of the following components: (1) The 1,906,363 inhabitants of the 105 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; (2) the 15,178 inhabitants of the 4 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (3) 66,847 persons living outside of incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more in the urban fringes of Madison, Milwaukee, Racine, and the Wisconsin part of the urban fringe of Duluth (Minn.)--Superior (Wis.). As there were no places urban under special rule according to the old definition in Wisconsin, the population of the first element comprised the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements--81,525--represents the gain in the urban population which resulted from the change in definition.
