[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Aleutians East, Bethel, Bristol Bay, Dillingham, Kodiak Island, Lake and Peninsula, Nome, North Slope, Northwest Arctic, and Wade Hampton included with Aleutians West; data not available separately. [7] Matanuska-Susitna and Valdez-Cordova included with Anchorage; data not available separately. [8] Denali Borough included with Yukon-Koyukuk Census Area; data not available separately. [9] Denali, Southeast Fairbanks, and Yukon-Koyukuk included with Fairbanks Northstar; data not available separately. [10] Haines, Ketchikan Gateway, Prince of Wales-Outer Ketchikan, Sitka, Skagway-Yakutat-Angoon, and Wrangell-Petersburg included with Juneau; data not available separately.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Kalawao County included with Maui County; data not available separately. [7] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Yellowstone National Park County included with Park County; data not available separately.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.

[1] For 1990 corrected population, see table B-1. Percent is based on 1990 uncorrected population because only total population is corrected. [2] For total earnings, see table B-8. [3] Most data are comparable between 1992 and 1997; however, it should be noted that farms with all acreage in Conservation or Wetlands Reserve Programs (excluded in 1992) are included in 1997, as are short rotation woody crops which includes Christmas trees and maple sap gathering (in Forestry in 1992). [4] Includes nursery and greenhouse crops. [5] Includes related products. [6] Less than $50,000.
