Appendix C. Geographic Information

Table A—States

States are the primary governmental divisions of the United States. The District of Columbia is treated as a statistical equivalent of a state for census purposes. A map showing the United States with census regions and divisions and their constituent states appears on the inside front cover.

Each state and the District of Columbia is assigned a two-digit Federal Information Processing Standards (FIPS) code. The FIPS state code is a sequential numbering, with some gaps, of the alphabetical arrangement of the states and the District of Columbia: Alabama (01) to Wyoming (56). These codes are presented in the first column of table A-1.

FIPS codes are issued by the National Institute of Standards and Technology for a variety of geographical entities, including states, counties, metropolitan areas, and places. The objective of the FIPS codes is to improve the transferability of the data resources within the federal government and to avoid unnecessary duplication and incompatibilities in the collection, processing, and dissemination of data. FIPS code documentation is available from the National Technical Information Service, Springfield, VA, 22161 (703-487-4650). State FIPS codes can be viewed at Internet site <http://www.itl.nist.gov/fipspubs/fip5-2.htm>.

Table B—Counties

The primary political divisions of most states are termed "counties." In Louisiana, these divisions are known as "parishes." In Alaska, which has no counties, the county equivalents are the organized "boroughs" and the "census areas" that are delineated for statistical purposes by the State of Alaska and the U.S. Census Bureau. In four states (Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, and Virginia), there are one or more cities that are independent of any county organization and, thus, constitute primary divisions of their states. These cities are known as "independent cities" and are treated as equivalent to counties for statistical purposes. The District of Columbia has no primary divisions, and the entire area is considered equivalent to a county for statistical purposes. Maps for each state showing counties and equivalent areas can be found in Appendix D.

Each county and statistically equivalent entity is assigned a three-digit FIPS code that is unique within a state. These codes are assigned in alphabetical order of county or county equivalents except for the independent cities, which are assigned codes higher than and following the listing of counties. The combination of a FIPS two-digit state code followed by a FIPS three-digit county code provides a unique geographic identifier for each county and equivalent area. These codes are presented in the third column of table C-2 at the end of this appendix. County codes can be viewed at Internet site <http://www.itl.nist.gov/fipspubs/fip6-4.htm>.

Metropolitan areas. The first column of table C-2 presents the five-digit core based statistical area (CBSA) code for the metropolitan area (MA) in which the county is located. The codes represent metropolitan areas defined by the Office of Management and Budget as of December 5, 2005. An MA containing a single core with a population of 2.5 million or more may be subdivided into smaller groupings of counties referred to as metropolitan divisions (MDs). The second column of table C-2 presents the five-digit MD.

A complete listing of these MAs with their component counties and 2006 population can be found at the end of this appendix in table C-2. For a discussion of metropolitan area concepts, see Internet site <http://www.census.gov/population/www/estimates/metroarea.html>. Other data for these areas are not presented in this volume but are published in another Statistical Abstract supplement, the State and Metropolitan Area Data Book. For a complete description, see the inside back cover.

County and county equivalent changes. Counties and equivalent areas shown in tables B-1 through B-15 of this publication total 3,141 as of November 15, 2001, when Bloomfield County was created from parts of Adams, Boulder, Jefferson, and Weld Counties. The boundaries of Broomfield County reflect the boundaries of Broomfield city legally in effect on that date. Between January 1, 1992, when the number of counties was previously defined, and November 15, 2001, there have been a number of changes to counties and equivalent areas. These changes are summarized below.

In Alaska: Effective September 22, 1992, the Yakutat Borough was established; this new borough was created from part of the Skagway-Yakutat-Angoon Census Area (CA) with the remaining area being renamed the Skagway-Hoonah-Angoon CA. Effective January 1, 1994, Juneau Borough gained territory from Skagway-Hoonah-Angoon CA.

In Maryland: Effective July 1, 1997, Montgomery County expanded to include all of the former Prince George's County part of Takoma Park city and Prince George's County decreased as a result of the county boundary shift excluding Takoma Park city.

In Montana: Effective November 7, 1997, Gallatin County was expanded by addition of territory from the former county equivalent of Yellowstone National Park. Park County was also expanded by addition of territory from the former county equivalent of Yellowstone National Park. This change eliminates Yellowstone National Park as a county equivalent.

In Virginia: Effective July 1, 1993, the independent city of Bedford gained area annexed from Bedford County; the independent city of Galax gained area annexed from Carroll County; and the independent city of Fairfax gained area annexed from Fairfax County. Effective July 1, 1994, the independent city of Waynesboro gained area annexed from Augusta County. Effective June 30, 1995, the independent city of South Boston no longer exists; it became a dependent town within Halifax County. Effective December 31, 1995, the independent city of Franklin gained area annexed from Southampton County. Effective July 1, 2001, the independent city of Clifton Forge no longer exists; it became a dependent town within Alleghany County.

Table C—Cities

As used in this publication, the term "city" refers to incorporated places with a 2000 population of 25,000 or more and the Honolulu and Arlington census designated places (CDPs) of Hawaii and Virginia, respectively. Incorporated places presented in this table are those reported to the Census Bureau as legally in existence on January 1, 2005, under the laws of their respective states, as cities, boroughs, municipalities, towns, and villages, with the following exceptions: the boroughs in Alaska and New York and the towns in the New England states, New York, and Wisconsin. The boroughs in Alaska are county equivalents and are shown in table B. The boroughs in New York and the towns in the states noted above are treated as minor civil divisions (MCDs) for decennial purposes. For those cities that legally came into existence after January 1, 2000, the estimated 2000 population for that area was used to determine inclusion in table C. Incorporated places can cross both county and MCD boundaries.

In table C, the two-digit FIPS state codes and five-digit FIPS place codes are presented in the first column of table C-1. Each place is assigned a five-digit FIPS place code that is unique within the state based on alphabetical order within the state. Together with the two-digit FIPS state code, this code provides a unique identifier for each place in the country. To view place codes see, Internet site <http://geonames.usgs.gov/domestic/download_data.htm>.

Also in table C, the name of the county or county equivalent in which the city is located is shown in the column following the area name in table C-1. If a city crosses county boundaries, all counties in which the city is located are listed alphabetically.

Consolidated cities. As of 2005, the Census Bureau recognized seven entities that had consolidated their city governmental function with a county or MCD but continue to contain governmentally active incorporated places within and as part of those consolidated cities. These areas with their components and 2005 population are listed below in table C-1. In table C, the data for cities shown in tables C-1 through C-6 of this publication cover only the portion of the consolidated city not in any other place, e.g., "Milford city (balance)."

Table D—Places

The term "place," for the purposes of this publication, refers to incorporated places with a 2000 population of 100,000 or more and the Honolulu and Arlington CDPs of Hawaii and Virginia, respectively. Seven states (Delaware, Maine, Montana, North Dakota, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wyoming) do not have any incorporated places of 100,000 or more population. Incorporated places presented in this table are those reported to the Census Bureau as legally in existence on January 1, 2005, under the laws of their respective states, as cities, boroughs, municipalities, towns, and villages, with the following exceptions: the boroughs in Alaska and New York and the towns in the New England states, New York, and Wisconsin. The boroughs in Alaska are county equivalents and are shown in table B. The boroughs in New York and the towns in the states noted above are treated as MCDs for decennial purposes. For those places that legally came into existence after January 1, 2005, the estimated 2000 population for that area was used to determine inclusion in table D. Incorporated places can cross both county and MCD boundaries.

Consolidated cities. As of 2005, the Census Bureau recognized five entities with a population of 100,000 or more that had consolidated their city governmental function with a county or MCD but continue to contain governmentally active incorporated places within and as part of those consolidated cities. These areas with their components and 2005 population are listed above in table C-1. In table D, the data for places shown in tables D-1 through D-6 of this publication cover only the portion of the consolidated city not in any other place, e.g., "Indianapolis city (balance)."

In table D, the two-digit FIPS state codes and five-digit FIPS place codes are presented in the first column of table D-1. Each place is assigned a five-digit FIPS place code that is unique within the state based on alphabetical order within the state. Together with the two-digit FIPS state code, this code provides a unique identifier for each place in the country. To view place codes, see Internet site <http://geonames.usgs.gov/domestic/download_data.htm>.
