

West Coast residents lead the nation in how much they value living near arts and cultural events.

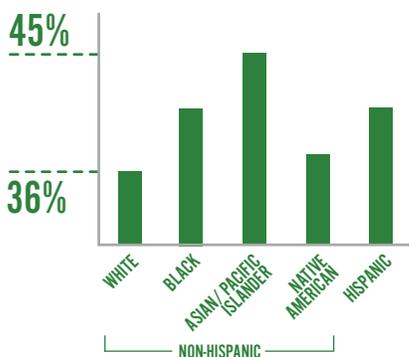

38% of households value living near arts and cultural events.

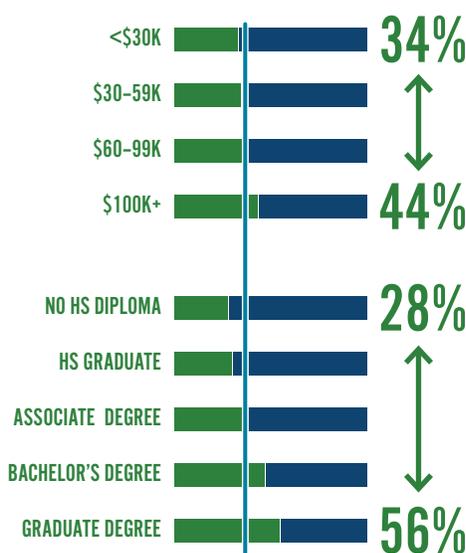

87% of those are satisfied with programming in their neighborhood.

Importance of living near arts and cultural events varies across racial and ethnic groups.

Importance of living near arts and cultural events increases with income and level of education.

37% National Average

Renters are slightly more likely than owners to report that living near art and cultural events is "important" or "very important."

